Requesting: $448.13

Submitted: [DATE]

I'm requesting a refund of $448.13, the amount I'm out of pocket on invoice pay_DIZb8qblc9AJIO after the $190.00 you already returned on 18 September.

I'm not asking because I got unlucky on a lottery. I'm asking because running this service destroyed the Target accounts it depends on, twice, and your own head of ACO confirmed the first one publicly, by name, in your main chat.

1. YOUR STAFF ANNOUNCED IN PUBLIC CHAT THAT THIS SERVICE DELETED ALL MY TARGET ACCOUNTS.

On 29 September at 4:01 PM, Pixz was explaining to another member why that member's Target accounts had stopped working. He wrote:

"I think ur accounts are all locked ... I can't login ... maybe not all ... Just most. I already had this issue with @grandmasterflex007 and all his accounts were deleted."

I am grandmasterflex007. That is your head of ACO telling the server, by name, that operating this service deleted every Target account I had.

I replied in that same thread asking whether mine were all right now. His answer: "Yes since u replaced." The remedy on offer was that I rebuild every account from scratch and keep going.

He then gave the cause, unprompted: "Yeah it not good to make all under one ip too fast ... gotta do it gradually." Those accounts were created and operated the way your own guides instruct. The failure is a property of how the service runs, not something I did to it.

On [DATE] it happened again. My one successful Target checkout was flagged and the account was suspended. Target's notice said: "[QUOTE TARGET'S EXACT WORDING]".

So this is not a freak result. It happened, you acknowledged it publicly, you told me to replace the accounts and continue, and then it happened again.

2. I BOUGHT THIS SPECIFICALLY TO STOP LOSING AT TARGET. TWO WEEKS LATER I HAD NO TARGET ACCOUNTS AND WAS BACK TO DOING IT BY HAND.

I joined on 17 September. That evening I wrote in chat: "First timer here. I can't tell you how much I hate targets checkout. Literally the reason I joined the other day was so I could stop getting boned." I upgraded to VIP Top Tier the next day for $638.13.

By 30 September I was posting "Thank god I went manual."

That is the entire arc of the product for me. I paid $638.13 to stop checking out manually, and within two weeks I was checking out manually with fewer Target accounts than I started with.

3. YOUR OWN STAFF DOCUMENTED THE SERVICE FAILING THROUGHOUT MY PAID PERIOD.

16 September, mid-drop, Pixz: "wake up to all my shit crashed" and "it crashed through the most important part."

17 September: Costco ACO non-functional, members told to run manually.

18 September, Pixz: "It's all bot issues there's a reason all of us are not cooking going from thousands of checkouts to a sadge 50-100 max ... Every 15-20 accounts I got 1 - 2 c.o."

23 September, Pixz: "if all of us are struggling it means there's something up."

1 October, after Target dropped Ascended ETBs, Prismatic SPCs, 30th ETBs and First Partner 2 and 3 in a single night, Pixz: "looks like all other providers missed out too." Not one runner was active for the largest drop of the period.

1 October, asked whether the ACO runs continuously: "No that would degrade performance heavily."

I was not the only one losing accounts either. On 30 September another member wrote "I would like to know if my accounts are setup properly so they don't get locked again." On 23 September another: "I see one of my accounts is under review and needs to be appealed to get reinstated."

4. ON "LIFETIME."

I expect the answer that lifetime access doesn't expire, so there's nothing to refund.

Lifetime access to a service I have no way to use is not worth anything. This service requires working Target accounts to do anything at all. Operating it is what got mine deleted the first time and suspended the second. The product removed the one thing it needs in order to function, and then offered me the option of rebuilding it and waiting for it to happen again.

5. WHAT I ACTUALLY RECEIVED.

One successful Target checkout, [ITEM] on [DATE], which was flagged. That is the entire return on $638.13. I'm stating it plainly because you have the logs.

SUMMARY

I'm not claiming you guaranteed hits. I'm claiming that running this service deleted all of my Target accounts, that your head of ACO said so publicly and named me, that the fix offered was to rebuild them and continue, that it then happened a second time, and that your staff confirmed the product was malfunctioning throughout the period I paid for.

I'd like $448.13 refunded and the membership cancelled, and I'd appreciate a response within five business days.
