Paid: $250.00, VIP Annual

Requesting: Full refund

Submitted: October 1, 2026

I'm requesting a refund of my $250 VIP annual membership, purchased 9/17/2026.

This isn't about a run of bad luck on a lottery. It's three specific things: I was sold access to a drop I was structurally excluded from, your own setup requirements removed the method I had always used successfully, and your staff stated repeatedly on the record that the product wasn't working during the period I paid for.

1. I PAID SPECIFICALLY TO BE IN ON THE 9/17 30TH CELEBRATION DROP, AND WAS EXCLUDED BY A CUTOFF THAT IS DISCLOSED NOWHERE BEFORE PURCHASE.

I entered at 9:56 PM on 9/17, hours before the drop. Pixz replied at 9:59 PM: "You will not all Providers are done exporting." I said at 10:00 PM: "So nothing I can do for tonight? I didnt know there was a cutoff and just dropped $250 to get in on this toinght." Pixz confirmed at 10:01 PM: "Yeah sadly none of us will export anymore for tonight's drop."

Nothing on the sales page says entries close hours before a drop, or that a new member can't be run on the day they pay. I bought a product for a specific event and was told after payment that the event was already closed to me.

2. FOLLOWING YOUR OWN GUIDELINES ELIMINATED MY ABILITY TO BUY MANUALLY, WHICH HAD WORKED FOR ME EVERY TIME BEFORE.

Pixz's Pokemon Center guidelines require a separate payment card per checkout profile. I have two credit cards and one debit card, so building profiles to spec consumed all three. On 9/30 at 7:50 AM I asked Pixz directly whether I should still queue manually. His answer at 7:51 AM: "u should run manual too js don't use the same info as ur profiles." I replied: "I exhausted all my payment cards with profiles. 2 CCs and a debit."

Your advice to scale profiles and your advice to keep a manual backup are mutually exclusive for anyone with a normal number of cards. I followed the guidelines and lost the thing that had always worked. That morning was the first time I have ever used an ACO for Pokemon Center, and the first time I have ever missed one. Three profiles, 0 for 3. Across three of us running nine profiles, 0 for 9.

3. YOUR OWN STAFF DOCUMENTED THE SERVICE FAILING DURING THE WEEKS I PAID FOR.

9/16, mid-drop, Pixz: "wake up to all my shit crashed" and "it crashed through the most important part."

9/17: Costco ACO non-functional, members told to run manually.

9/18, Pixz: "It's all bot issues there's a reason all of us are not cooking going from thousands of checkouts to a sadge 50-100 max... Every 15-20 accounts I got 1 - 2 c.o."

9/23, Pixz: "if all of us are struggling it means there's something up."

10/1, after Target dropped Ascended ETBs, Prismatic SPCs, 30th ETBs and First Partner 2 and 3 in a single night, Pixz: "looks like all other providers missed out too." Not one runner was active for the largest drop of the period.

10/1, asked whether the ACO runs continuously: "No that would degrade performance heavily."

The product is sold as auto checkout. In practice it's a person deciding whether to be awake, and on the biggest drop of the month I paid for, nobody was.

4. WHAT WAS ADVERTISED VERSUS WHAT IT IS.

Members in chat on 9/30 referenced claims of a "100% hit rate for pkc" made ahead of that drop. I went 0 for 3 on it.

5. THE VALUE OF WHAT I BOUGHT WAS COLLAPSING AS I BOUGHT IT, AND YOU KNEW.

Walmart had already moved to raffles. Best Buy is raffle-only. On 9/28 a member posted that the Target app update enabling raffles had already shipped. On 9/29 Pixz wrote "Ngl nothing is left after this one" and "If every site goes to raffle nobody will be eating." Another member who had just upgraded replied "Sucks for those of us that just upgraded or joined the server.. waste of money."

I bought an annual subscription on 9/17. Within twelve days your head of ACO was publicly saying the model was running out of road.

6. FOR THE RECORD, WHAT I DID RECEIVE.

One successful Target checkout, a Tech Sticker twofer. That is the entire return on $250 across two weeks. I'm stating it plainly because you have the logs.

SUMMARY

I'm not claiming you guaranteed hits. I'm claiming three things documented in your own server: I was sold access to a drop that was already closed to me at the time of sale, your setup requirements removed my working alternative, and your staff repeatedly confirmed the product was malfunctioning throughout the period I paid for.

I'd like the $250 refunded and the subscription cancelled, and I'd appreciate a response within five business days.
